Company to Partner with Dental Schools in Support of Student-Led Mission Trips Around the World

MELVILLE, N.Y., October 1, 2025 — Henry Schein, Inc. (Nasdaq: HSIC) has opened applications for its Henry Schein Cares Global Student Outreach Program. This initiative provides dental schools and student-led organizations in the United States with oral health supplies to support volunteer missions in communities with limited access to care.

Through the program, Henry Schein Cares—the Company’s global corporate citizenship program—donates a wide range of products to selected academic institutions valued up to $10,000, from instruments and equipment to preventive and restorative materials. These contributions enable dental students and faculty to offer critical services, including emergency care, screenings, and treatments to populations in need, enriching education through hands-on public health experience.

“The best opportunity to integrate volunteerism into a health professional’s career is during school, pairing academic learning with real-world impact,” said David Kochman, Senior Vice President, Chief Corporate Affairs Officer. “Through the Global Student Outreach Program, we are helping health care professionals treat patients and tapping into the passion and potential of the next generation to build a healthier future and foster a lifelong commitment to service, one mission at a time.”

Dental schools and student groups interested in applying for support must meet specific criteria, which include a detailed mission plan and a focus on serving underserved communities. Applications must be submitted by a current student or faculty member and are subject to verification with school leadership before approval. Each school is eligible to receive one Global Student Outreach Program grant per calendar year.*
