Destiny Media and Warner Music Group Announce Global Distribution Agreement

2009-02-03

NEW YORK, Feb. 3 -- Warner Music Group (NYSE: WMG) and Destiny Media today announced a global agreement to distribute promotional audio and video content from WMG's award-winning roster of artists using Destiny Media's Play MPE digital media distribution service. Effective immediately, WMG will work with Destiny Media to deliver selected content for pre-release distribution to radio stations, retailers, journalists and other business partners.

The player will offer an array of access permissions and player options, such as digital downloads, streams and varying degrees of interactivity that will improve the user experience.

"We are very pleased that Warner Music Group has chosen the global network Play MPE(R) to securely deliver pre-release music and video. Play MPE(R) will allow Warner to streamline this business processes, reduce costs, and to securely deliver superior quality music instantly to customers around the world," said Steve Vestergaard, CEO Destiny Media.

"Given Destiny Media's reach and the size of its distribution network, we are looking forward to working with them on delivering our content securely over their Play MPE system while offering our partners a more powerful and customized method of experiencing our music," said Pat Kraus, Vice President, Digital Operations and Engineering, WEA Corps, WMG's US sales and retail marketing company.
